DynaMed & BMJ Best Practice trials end soon

Visit the Library Hub to access DynaMed and BMJ Best Practice point of care tools. These two online resources are on trial until 30 September.

At the conclusion of the trial a decision will be made for one of these resources to be purchased for access to the primary care sector via Health Pathways. Should budgets allow, consideration will be given to including secondary care access as part of a bundled package with the successful supplier.

Last days to access DynaMed and BMJ Best Practice!

Please let us know how useful these tools would be in your daily practice. Either respond to this brief survey or email the library directly with your comments. Thanks, we really appreciate your feedback.

An APA referencing challenge!

How is it possible to reference a patient record without breaching patient confidentiality?

When there is a conflict between confidentiality and reference citation, confidentiality must be the priority.

References to a patient's record must ensure privacy, for example - "The patient's clinical record provided information about X".

Do not include a reference in the reference list or anything that resembles an in-text citation that might reveal or even hint at the patient's identity.

The same ethical principles apply when quoting research participants.

This information is provided by APA Style Expert, American Psychological Association.

Te reo Māori and respect

A kuia told me how angry and hurt she felt when she was corrected for her pronunciation of a Māori place name. She was told “That’s not how you say it, I’m a local and it’s always been ...”

The words in the book Tikanga : living with the traditions of te ao Māori take me back to that conversation—“I see pronunciation as another word for respect, I don’t expect people to get it right all the time, but I like them to try. If their intentions are good and they have a good heart, I don’t feel so bad.” Request Tikanga : living with the traditions of te ao Māori. A guide to te ao Maori

Te Wiki o te Reo Māori, is a timely reminder for all to show support for the Māori language, Make it your goal this month to try pronouncing place names correctly.

Check your pronunciation on Te Aka Maori Dictionary.
